Attendance must be reported within 10 business days

Attendees will need to self-report learning units for four house tours and one lunch program for a total of 5 LU's.

Attendees can self-report via their AIA member's page. To do so, follow this path:

- Log In at www.aia.org
- Click "My Account."
- When your name appears, click on "Report Attendance" on the far right.
- Please note, attendance must be reported within 10-business days of course completion.
- Type in your member number and password, then report these details:

Learning Lab was a full-day, coach-driven tour to Palm Springs for designers and architects to see the best of Modernism Week's showcase homes. I attended AIA LBSB Palm Springs Modernism Week tours of the following four homes: Hollingsworth Tennis Estate, West Elm House, Steel and Glass House, and Moroccan Modern House, plus I attended a one-hour lunch program, 'The New Consumer' for a total of 5 learning units. Learning Lab educator Bio – Mike Hetherman, President, Willis. Mike has been a prominent voice in the design community, being sought after for his global design insights which have been developed throughout his 25+ year tenure as a CKD.
